We are optimistic on Route Mobile IPO considering its leading position in cloud-communication, OTT segment and MNOs space. With growing internet penetration and business models adopting digital platform with cloud communication services being need of the hour to digital world, we believe investors should tap this opportunity. Route Mobile does not have a direct comparable listed peer in India. It will become the second firm in the larger mobile communication services after Affle India. On valuations parse at upper price band (Rs 350/-), the issue is asking for market cap Rs 1,990 Cr and we believe the company can comfortably command a PE of 24x-25x, which makes the IPO valuation fairly attractive for long term investors. Considering all the parameters we recommend to SUBSCRIBE for the issue, with the potential for healthy listing gains as well as long term stock appreciation.
